What is the Construction Leadership Council?

The Construction Leadership Council \(CLC\) was established to cultivate the next generation of leaders in the construction industry as well as the association both at the local and national levels. The purpose of the CLC is to act as a conduit for participants to network, exchange ideas about work and the industry, serve local communities and continuing education which includes both professional development and leadership skills.

Not part of an AGC Member Company? YCA Membership Can help Bridge the Gap!

The Young Constructors Associate (YCA) membership is designed to serve as an interim step for recent college graduates who have received a construction-related degree from an accredited program. The goal is to provide new industry entrants with a connection to AGC of America until such time as they find employment within an AGC member firm. Please note that while YCA membership provides access to AGC of America events and education, you need to check with your local AGC chapter. For more information please visit: www.agc.org/connect/yca-membership.

The Construction Leadership Council provided me an opportunity to continue the networking and relationship building that started with my involvement in the AGC Student Chapter at Boise State University. In the CLC, your group of influence grows from the people you attend class with to a larger group including former students and other industry professionals that you don't get a chance to work with while in school. This diverse group of people are able to provide a different perspective on the industry as well as introduce you to people in other fields that are valuable resources for continued education and career growth.
